THE AWARD

The Australian Search and Rescue Award is presented annually by the National Search and Rescue (NATSAR) Council. The NATSAR Council includes representatives of Commonwealth, State and Territory SAR authorities which include the Australian Maritime Safety Authority, Australian Defence Force and Commonwealth, State and Territory Police.

This award gives recognition to those involved in Search and Rescue in Australia while also raising community awareness.

Judging of nominations will be on the basis of information contained in the nomination form and supporting documentation. Each SAR authority is afforded two votes, one for the Australian SAR Award and one for a commendation award if it is thought that a second nominee is deserving of special recognition. The decision of the selection committee is final and no correspondence will be entered into.
